

RICHARD DACOSTA

Richard has worked in Human Resource management over a 30 year career in both the UK and France. His sector experience includes retailing, manufacturing/distribution and utilities/public services.

He has experienced many major change programmes including participating in two hostile takeovers, two significant mergers and being sold by a parent company.

Richard currently undertakes executive coaching and consulting assignments; lectures on both MBA and International Human Resource Management Masters Degree programmes in the UK and France; runs his own business and is active in promoting improved Human Resource management practices in the voluntary and aid sector.